Fall into Science with Night Creepers

Mount Pleasant, SC — Not all animals go to bed as sunlight fades into darkness. Meet the creatures that lurk in the dark in the latest picture book by the award-winning duo Linda Stanek and Shennen Bersani. Night Creepers releases September 10th from Arbordale Publishing.

Some animals come out at twilight, while others prefer the cover of darkness to find their dinner. In the pages of Night Creepers, young readers meet a variety of animals through simple rhyming text and detailed illustrations. Additional fun facts on each page make the book a perfect fit for beginning or experienced readers who want to learn more about nocturnal and crepuscular animals.

Author Linda Stanek has always had an interest in the seemingly invisible animals of the night. After calling them “night creepers” for some time, she began to envision a book. Through research, Linda was fascinated with the different colors of eyeshine and even included a section in the book’s “For Creative Minds” on the topic.

Shennen Bersani visited the Alaska Zoo, the Stone Zoo, and the Blue Hills Trailside Museum to find her inspiration for Night Creepers, but many of the animals are found right outside her door at night. Shennen’s appreciation for nature comes through in her realistic style.

An appended “For Creative Minds” section concludes the book where readers learn more about nocturnal and crepuscular animals and the adaptations that allow these animals to thrive at night. Additionally, a teaching activities guide is available online for educators to seamlessly include the book into classroom lessons.

Night Creepers is available in hardcover (9781607183228, $17.95), paperback (9781607183235, $9.95), ebook (9781607183266, $6.95), and dual-language (9781607183563, $6.95), interactive ebook. A Spanish-language edition is available in paperback (9781607183259, $9.95), ebook (9781607183273, $6.95), and interactive ebook (9781607183570, $6.95).
